Handouts: Supplementary handouts provided in class are also considered part of required course materials.

Course description: Legal Studies 101-301 provides an introduction to the study of law and legal process. As an honors course, it provides a more conceptual, broad-ranging, and experimental approach than the ordinary Legal Studies 101 course. The course critically explores the role of law in modern society, providing an overview of basic functional areas, including the nature of law and competing values that inform legal decision-making, an overview of the American legal system, a brief Amini-course@ in the substantive law of contracts, and coverage of other selected topics of current legal interest. This semester=s course will focus particularly on the nature of U.S. constitutional law and legal interpretation.

Papers and Grading: There will be two short required papers and one final presentation/argument in class of a current case pending or recently decided by the U.S. Supreme Court. Each paper and the final presentation will count for approximately one-third of the final grade for the course. Students are required to discuss paper topics with the professor in advance (and get them approved) during office hours, by appointment, by e-mail or phone, or before/after class sessions.

Pop quizzes: One or more pop quizzes may be given without notice as a check on whether students are able to keep up with the reading. If and when given, they will be factored into the class participation part of the final grade.

Citations and Plagiarism: Students must give adequate citations for all sources quoted or used in writing papers. No specific form of citations in footnotes is required, as long as the source is identified sufficiently for it to be found and checked. Every paper must be the student=s own work. Any incident of plagiarism will be fully prosecuted through the usual channels.

Class Participation: In addition to formal requirements, students are expected to have read and be prepared to discuss the material assigned for each class. Consistently excellent participation in class may be taken into account to increase a student's grade by one step (e.g., B+ to A-). Poor attendance or failure to participate regularly and knowledgeably in class discussion may be taken into account to reduce a student=s final grade by one step.

Office hours: Mondays from 1:45 to 2:45 pm and by appointment.

Appendix: Prof's Bio

Prior to joining the faculty at the University of Pennsylvania in 1991, I worked as a lawyer for two years as a litigation associate at Paul, Weiss, Rifkind, Wharton & Garrison in New York City. While in law school at the University of Michigan (J.D.), I interned at the Legal Aid Society of Cleveland and the U.S. Defense Department. I also served as an articles editor on the University of Michigan Journal of Law Reform. Other education and experience: Columbia University (J.S.D., Chemical Bank fellow in corporate social responsibility); New School for Social Research (M.A. in political science); Oberlin College (B.A. in government and minor in philosophy). After undergraduate college, I moved to New York City and worked as a paralegal/proofreader at Skadden, Arps.

I grew up in a small town near Martins Ferry, Ohio (about sixty miles down the Ohio River from Pittsburgh). I'm married and have one son and two step-daughters. My wife, Julie, works at Philabundance.

Here at Penn and Wharton, my teaching and research interests focus on corporate law, securities regulation, and environmental management. My primary appointment is as a professor in the Legal Studies and Business Ethics Department at Wharton, with a secondary appointment in the Management Department. I was named to an endowed chair as the Guardsmark Professor in 2003. I serve currently as director of the Initiative for Global Environmental Leadership (IGEL), as well as a co-academic director of the FINRA at Wharton Institute (an executive education program for regulatory and compliance professionals in the financial industry).

Other teaching and professional experience (mostly during sabbaticals or academic leaves): visiting professor at UCLA School of Law, University of Michigan Law School, Tsinghua University, Sydney Law School, and NYU School of Law; visiting Fulbright professor in the law department of the University of Leuven; and Eugene P. Beard Faculty Fellow at Harvard University's Center for Ethics and the Professions (and faculty fellow in the Center for Business and Government at the Kennedy School at Harvard).

Current research: forthcoming book on The Persons of Business Enterprise: A Legal Theory of the Firm (Oxford University Press 2013). Recent article: "Climate Contracts" (Virginia Environmental Law Journal).
