Description

This course is based on the principle that knowledge and understanding of employment law facilitate (1) promotion of a workforce with a high degree of commitment to reaching business goals, (2) the development of practical business solutions to problems arising in the workplace, (3) effective human resources policies and procedures that comply with applicable laws. This course provides future business owners, entrepreneurs, executives, managers and students interested in going to law school or intending to enter the workforce with an introduction to the law of the workplace. The course examines the various employment laws with which businesses must comply and the legal rights and responsibilities of employees and employers. Balancing employer legal compliance and equal employment opportunity imperatives with dynamics conducive to a successful enterprise is a significant theme throughout the course. Emphasis is on laws concerning equal employment opportunity with respect to discrimination and harassment because of sex, race, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, age, disability, pregnancy, veterans' status and other characteristics protected by laws; work-related security and privacy including investigations, drug testing, violence, safety, social media and electronic communications; employee misclassification; affirmative action; and the legal and regulatory environment regarding immigration, wage and hour, leaves of absence, hiring, the non-employee workforce, labor/management relations and collective bargaining.

Assigned Readings

Course materials will be posted on Canvas throughout the semester. Readings are court opinions, laws and regulations, articles from the media and outlines of particular topics in employment law for managers. Many of the Readings listed on the Syllabus will not be assigned. There is no textbook for the course.

Exams and Grading

Class participation counts for 15% of your grade. There will be one midterm examination counting 30% and a final examination counting 30% of your grade. In addition, you will be responsible for a presentation to the class, either individually or as a group assignment, concerning a court opinion that addresses an employment law issue (counting 25% of your grade). A list of opinions from which you may choose will be distributed in class.

Class Preparation

The readings listed on the syllabus are subject to change. MANY of the readings listed will NOT be assigned. Final assignments will be announced prior to the class for which they are assigned. Final reading assignments for each class are mandatory. Any handout provided before class must be read before class because the discussion will focus on this material. Class preparation is crucial to meaningful class participation.

Topical Assignments

The assignments listed for each date are also subject to change as a result of course pacing, schedule changes or developments in the law. Some topics may not be covered.
