COURSE OVERVIEW
This module considers the ethical responsibilities of managers and corporations. It is designed to raise ethical dilemmas and to provide plausible frameworks for dealing with them. It is also designed to reveal common patterns of success and failure in managing ethical conflicts. A successful module engages students in a critical evaluation of managerial and corporate ethics and encourages each student to develop a justifiable perspective on the role of ethics in business.

COURSE OBJECTIVES
• To foster an understanding of the ethical responsibilities assumed in becoming business managers;
• To enhance one’s ability to engage in moral decision-making and to practice its use in concrete case analysis.
• To improve individual and group skills in identifying, analyzing and resolving several ethical issues faced by managers in the content in which they arise;
• To examine the values that individuals bring to their decision-making and to understand the role values play in managerial decision-making.
• To develop action plans that might help to resolve ethical conflicts and dilemmas that arise in both the domestic and global environments.

COURSE METHODS
Class sessions will consist of lecture/discussion of theoretical frameworks, collaborative case discussions, exercises and brief film clips.

COURSE GRADING
There will be two written assignments required this term. One will be based on the readings and discussions of the issues in the first three classes. Organizing themes for this essay will be suggested. It will be due in hard copy at the beginning of the 4th class (February 7, 2018). The second essay will involve a response to and an analysis of issues suggested in the remaining classes. The exam will be distributed in the last class on February 21, 2018 and will be due in hard copy to the Legal Studies/Business Ethics Department one week later on February 28, 2018. The final third of your grade can be earned by class participation which requires, of course, class attendance. Additionally, participation points will be lost for violation of the MBA’s policy forbidding the use of any electronic devices in class for non-educational purposes.
