Course Description

Overview

The objective of this course is to explore selected topics related to the entrepreneurial career path of acquiring a small or mid-sized business. We will examine this process through the perspective of following the acquisition cycle, which is addressed through a series of lectures, assigned readings, short case studies, and a final project which is outlined in this syllabus:

When determining whether to enroll in this course, please keep the following in mind:

1. No two deals or acquisition processes are the same.
2. This course is not meant to provide a comprehensive strategy on how to acquire a business, but provide you with the knowledge and context to decide a) whether or not you would want to explore a career path of entrepreneurship through acquisition, b) some alternative methods to becoming an entrepreneur, and c) a practical tool kit to guide you through the acquisition lifecycle.
3. While there are many similarities between the process of acquiring a small business and a private equity fund buyout or large mergers and acquisition deal, the world of small business is highly entrepreneurial, fragmented, and nuanced. As a result, there will be differences between what is discussed in class and the private equity process.

Some of the topics that will be discussed in class include locating a business, due diligence, valuation, adding synergy, tax considerations, obtaining capital, search funds, structuring purchases, employee retention plans, and post-closing integration.

Course Requirements

Attendance at all course sessions is mandatory. Failure to attend the first session will result in being automatically dropped from the course with no further right to admission.

Since the class discussions are an important component of the learning process, you should not register for this course unless you are prepared to attend and actively participate in each class. To encourage candid conversations in class, you should not record any of the lectures. Students will be expected to apply both their academic training and prior business experience to the class.

It is important that the entire class is engaged. When class begins, all electronic devices should be turned off and put away. If you need to use a device for a language or disability issue, please advise me before class.

I will post the lecture's slides on Canvas before each class. The slides provide an outline, but not a complete transcript, of the topics that will be covered in class.

Course Submissions and Grade Composition

The course submission requirements, deadlines, and grade composition are as follows:

- Class Participation- 30% (your contributions will be evaluated after each class)

- Homework- 20%
The homework assignments, which are short caselets, will be due at 10 p.m. the night before the designated classes, as indicated on the course schedule on the following pages. The assignments will be posted on Canvas four days before the due date. Your submissions should be two pages or less, and you will be expected to discuss your answers and concerns in class. The homework is designed to encourage you to think about the readings and facilitate active participation in class. In many cases, just like in real-world deal making, there is no single correct answer to the homework problems. However, I will provide you with a proposed solution to each assignment.

- Final Project- 50%
The final project will be a case study that will be distributed before the last class. As an alternative to the final project, you have the option of preparing an acquisition analysis project of an existing business. The requirements for the acquisition analysis are posted on Canvas and will be discussed in the first class. Either project can be prepared individually or in a group of up to 3 students. Regardless of whether you choose to do the final or alternative project, they are both due on May 4, 2018.

All assignments should be submitted via Canvas. If an assignment is submitted late, your grade will be penalized.

Accessibility

I am available to meet and can be reached via email and telephone to assist you. I will try to meet as many students as possible for lunch or dinner during the course.
